1007	Nicolas Feuillatte "Cuvee Palmes D'Or", Epernay, 1996 Nicolas Feuillatte is relatively new compared to most other champagne houses throughout the region. Jean-Pierre Vincent has been the head winemaker of the Centre Vinicole de la Champagne. This is a collection of cooperatives throughout the region that supply the wines that are blended to make Feuillatte wines. Cuvee Palms D'Or has been blended with wines from seven grand cru vineyard sites. It is a blend of fifty percent pinot noir, and fifty percent chardonnay. This wine is coming into maturity exhibiting shining citrus that is filled out by interesting berry overtones in both the nose and the taste. Flavors linger still stinging the tounge as they fade.	250
1013	Laurent Perrier "Cuvee Rose Brut", Marne, NV It is hard to resist rose champagne. After tasting this wonderful berry filled fizz, you will be powerless. This is the quintessential example of a classically styled rose. Light Salmon color tells your palette you are about to enjoy wonderfully fresh and satisfying wine. Here Laurent Perrier skillfully uses maceration technique to achieve the perfect balance of fruit and acidity. A fully dry wine, the Cuvee Rose Brut delivers a delicious combination of tangy strawberry fruit on the initial attack, and follows confidently with a sensuous rounded finish.	240
1020	Taittinger "Cuvee Prestige", Reims The Taittinger champagne house has very impressive vineyard holdings that dip into every corner of the great and diverse region of champagne. It is important to note that they are one of the largest growers in the Cotes des Blancs area. This means that they blend with large amounts of very high quality chardonnay grapes. These high acid Chardonnay blends etch out angles in the wine that seem to take the palate deep into a chalk cave where the champagne had been resting for the last five years. The deep lemon butter flavors scream for a piece of fresh baked bread to sop them up, and that is just what they receive as the tingling sensation subsides and the finish of this elegant wine begins.	105

2004	Rochioli, Sauvignon Blanc, Russian River Valley In 1938 Joe Rochioli Sr. purchased land that would eventually become the 162 acre estate of today. Before Joe Sr. bought the land he had already been farming it for many years. This gave him an intimate knowledge of the land that he could pass onto his son, Joe Jr., who could pass it on to his son Tom. Tom Rochioli is the current winemaker and is keeping the family traditions alive with splendid wines coming from the heart of the Russian River Valley. The acreage of the estate has been subdivided much like the land of Burgundy. This allows pure expression of a single piece of land to be embodied in the wine. Twenty percent of the wine has been fermented in oak, the rest in stainless steel. This gives the Sauvignon Blanc a round character that mellows the striking citrus fruit. A fresh wave of grapefruit hinted with green grassy notes keeps you thirsty.	90
3017	Domaine Marc Morey "Les Chenevottes", White Burgundy Les Chenevottes, a Premier Cru vineyard of Chassagne Montrachet, is just another reason why when searching for some of the greatest white wine in the world an x marks the spot at the border of Puligny and Chassagne Montrachet. Carrying on the traditional minerality and firm acidity, Jean Marc Morey really encompasses "terroir" with this particular bottling. Hints of smokiness and a floral finish set it apart and show the true essence of the the Cote d' Beaune.	156
3501	Wegeler "Bernkasteler Doctor", Riesling, Germany, 2005 The famous "Doctor" vineyard near the village of Bernkasteler was named because of the legend that the wines from this region were so delicious and so well crafted that they were given to kings and other royalty in order to cure various illnesses. One thing is for certain, the wines are very well crafted. The wine is picked at spatlese ripeness. There is some residual sugar in the wine but it is balanced beautifully by a sharp acidity. The concept of "terrior" can definitely be felt here as the wine burst with wonderful minerality carefully carried by the bright exotic and tropical fruit flavors.	90

6015	K Vintners, "The Boy," Rhone Blend, Walla Walla Washington "I'm the boy that can enjoy invisibility" – Serge Gainsbourg Clearly printed on the back of this bottle it is said to refer the ambiguity of the varietal, Grenache. Being predominately Grenache with some Syrah, Charles Smith has enhanced this unusually enjoyable "hot" wine a sense of sweetness in the bouquet. Rose petals, macerated strawberries, and pink cotton candy fill the glass with hints of mushroom and spices complementing nicely. A fantastic display of the wine making ability of an eclectic ex-band manager and someone who drinks his wine straight from the bottle, so it is not to be taken lightly.	100
5511	Nickel &amp; Nickel, "Bonfire", Zinfandel, Dry Creek, 2006 In 1997 the partners of Far Niente established Nickel &amp; Nickel. This firm is devoted to the sip. All of the wines by Nickel &amp; Nickel are made using single grape varieties from single vineyard sites. Dry creek valley, north of the Russian River Valley, is an ideal site for zinfandel. It's soil is interspersed with an iron rich loam soil that adds a savory facet to the sip. Aromas of a slowly cooked blackberry jam infused with vanilla seem to jump right out of the glass. A rich mouthful of lively fruit ensues to a long finishing enjoyment.	100
8515	Gaja, Promis, Ca Marcanda, Tuscan Blend, Bolgheri The blending of Merlot and Syrah with native Sangiovese is quite uncommon in Tuscany. That is unless you are referring to one of the most innovative wine makers in the world. Angelo Gaja is responsible for the first cabernet plantings in Piedmont, smaller barriques for more approachable wines, and innovation of the single vineyard. Gaja has taken this remarkably delicious native sangiovese and blended it with the best the new world has to offer. Incredibly fruit forward thanks to the pungency of the syrah, its chocolatey roundness of merlot and graceful earthiness of sangiovese make this a delightful way to experience a wine from a world class winemaker.	96
